I have known Gregory Finkelson for more than 6 years - - both as a friend and as a professional colleague.

In my capacity as an immigration attorney and as a professor of business administration I have had occasion to advise clients on whom to consult in specialized matters that involve risk and trust.

In my capacity as a professor of Business Administration and Business Ethics I have taught in China, Taiwan, Serbia, Nigeria, Canada, and Ethiopia. I am frequently asked by my students and their parents about EB-5 procedures and what programs they can safely trust and rely on. In many cases, they are risking much or all of their savings or assets.

A key factor in gaining EB-5 clients and building a relationship with EB-5 agencies is to fully understand how to contact EB-5 agencies and business associations in China and Vietnam.

Gregory offers a comprehensive guide on all aspects of locating both direct clients and EB-5 agencies in China. Based on my experiences lecturing in China, potential EB-5 investors and EB-5 agencies strongly want an honest and reliable attorney and regional service center with whom they can cooperate. Gregory's Practical Guide tells you how to find and approach potential partners and clients, how to introduce them to your legal and/or investment services, and how to assure them that your office or program is completely committed to their investment and immigration interests.
